EXHIBIT B

I had a question from George Warden that I responded to with a written email opinion. I think it would be good to circulate that opinion to other Clerks now. George had two foreign nationals request a Marriage License. To identify themselves, they presented their foreign Passports and their Visas. Their Passports were valid, but their Visas had expired. Since the Visas had expired they were in the country illegally.

I advised George NOT to issue a marriage license to these foreign nationals. I rendered a written opinion via email that the Clerk should not issue a marriage license to foreign nationals who were in the country illegally. I further advised that INS should be informed that these people had requested a marriage license and that their Visas had expired.

It is perfectly proper to issue a marriage license to foreign nationals as long as they are in the country legally. Evidence of being in the country legally would be the production of a valid Passport and a valid Visa or a Green Card.
